Brief Synopsis

HippoDuck, an unusual stuffed animal, love a good adventure with their best friend Charlotte, but when an unexpected turn of events happen at airport security, they embark on their own journey only to discover that although an unlikely pair, when disaster strikes, they make a great team.

Author credentials

Sandy Magura is a first time author, mother, and wife. She has over 10 years experience in everything from executive administration to non-profit consulting. She also has a bachelor's degree in communications. Her two children are her greatest blessings and husband Josh is her best friend and biggest supporter. She met her husband while raising money for injured service men and women doing national bicycle rides across the country. He was an amputee at Walter Reed Army Medical Center recovering from an accident. She loves her stay at home life and the fact that she can create and explore her passions. If she is not writing she can be found crafting , gardening, or spending time with her family. An entrepreneur at heart, her mommy job comes first, but she never lets that stop her dreams.

Seeking Review

Seeking an honest review of my children's picture book explaining its significance in the marketplace and it's need by parents who travel with children.
